PRAYER REQUESTS

- Health and Safety while we travel
- To fill our schedule with Meetings & Missions Conferences
- That we would raise 100% of our Support by July 2016

FALL MONTHS

We visited the church that Justin got saved in. Just over 17 years ago (this month), Justin asked Jesus to save him from his sins. Going back to the PLACE where he called on Christ was very awesome, but the awesomeness didn't end there. While we were there, we met some of the people who are still attending after 17 YEARS! Talk about being faithful to your church.

Justin was able to talk with his old Sunday School teacher, Mrs Blackman. She and her husband actually gave Justin a gift to help fund his first missions trip to Ireland. This trip, if you've heard our presentation then you know this, is what God used to lead Justin to the missions field. What a blessing to be able to see people who affected our lives for the LORD still serving God in their church!

THANKS!

I just wanted to start out by thanking our supporters. I can't tell you how much of an encouragement you have been.

When we started deputation, I really struggled with the question of would people support us for this start up phase. I've seen missionaries come through and quit weeks into their first term or even while they were on deputation! It basically came down to trusting that God called us and He would take care of us. God has shown Himself faithful to us in leading you to take us on! Thanks Pastors. Thanks Churches. Thanks for those of you who got behind us. We count it a huge blessing and responsibility to be partnered with you!

BLESSING!

I always like to see God answering prayer, not only because we benefit from it, but it shows how great of a king we serve! I heard a pastor last week talk about how day to day we seem to question where God is, but when we look back, it's so easy to God involved in our lives and protecting us and providing for us. I've had one of these moments.

It's time to buy tires for our vehicle, and I've been praying that God would provide them for us. I've heard many Christians speak of God's provision and I wanted to see that in my life too. Last week I took the plunge and ordered the tires. I had money saved up so this is all well and good. (By the way I believe that good stewardship of resources is how God usually provides our needs) On Sunday we visited the church and their love offering was almost the exact amount of our gas money to get there and home, and the cost of our new tires! Thank you LORD for providing for our family.

Our God is great. Our God is a benevolent God who takes care of his children, as opposed to asking for child sacrifices. Our God paid our debts.

FAMILY NEWS

I must say, it is fun having a little girl! She's to the point that we can take her to parks or outside to play. We love it now that she will play games with us. I can't wait for her to get a sense of humor.

She has been picking up on things all on her own. For instance, we asked her one afternoon if she had a dirty diaper. She responded by going into her diaper bag and bringing us a fresh one! We've never taught her to do that, where they are, or what they are called, she just picked it up. I marvel at what she can do at just a year old.

I know, I know, you veteran parents out there are reading this with a knowing smile and thinking "just wait, buddy". We are enjoying this parenting stuff so much. We are also thankful for pastors who emphasize the family, and who teach us how to raise our Adri.

DEPUTATION IS A MINISTRY?

We had the privilege of visiting a church this past month with just 5 people in attendance. We didn't really know what to expect. The Pastor had warned me that he had a small congregation. (don't worry, he and his people are some of my prayer supporters so they are reading this too) When we got there, we basically walked right in and started!

I was a little off balance, but made it through my presentation and sermon. After the service they gave us an offering that they had taken up for us. It was double of what we had gotten earlier that morning! We were not expecting that at all! Now I know we don't do this for the love offering, or even just for a promise of support, but that generous gift that they gave us humbled me! We were so blessed by these saints! I left that church smiling at how good God is, and how good our brethren are to us! It was a good reminder that we go to these churches with the intent to HELP. We are ministers while we are here on deputation! Thank you so much, Pastor and Church, for helping us, and giving us the chance to meet you and visit with you!
