CHRISTIAN UNCONCERN

I passed a church building just today
That was falling through with fast decay.
What caused this fate? I sought to learn.

Twas caused by Christians' unconcern.

They voted not with upraised hand

The membership thus to disband,

But each by staying from it's door

Has closed this church for evermore.

And I wondered as I mused within,

Have I been guilty of this sin?

Does my presence there assure

That my church will yet endure?

Or shall I with thoughtless unconcern

The *blood-bought house of Jesus spurn?

If I do this, I cast my vote

For the "closed forever" church door note.

WHAT PREACHING SHOULD DO

"Preaching should break a hard heart and heal a broken one."

Excerpts from

DOES GOD STILL GUIDE?

By J. Sidlow Baxter

Part 5 of 5

To the foregoing simple recommendations I would add just two or three more. First let intercession for others claim a large part of your praying. Paul did (Romans 1:9; Ephesians 1:16; Philippians 1:4; Colossians 1:9; 1 Thessalonians 1:12). Many of us would find new liberation from captivity to trial, doubt, problems, if we prayed more for others and less for ourselves. Remember Job 42:10. "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends" - not for himself!

Always have one part of your prayer-period for silent listening. It is good that much of our praying should be either outwardly or inwardly spoken words; but there is a language of the soul too deep for actual words. There is also a silence before God which speaks even more deeply - and at the same time hears God as only silence can.

Remember young Samuel's words, "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth" (1 Samuel 3:9,10). Some of us tend continually to transpose it: "Hear, Lord, for Thy servant speaketh." Practice listening! Never forget that last, seven-fold call of the Bible: "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear what the Spirit saith to the Churches." (Revelation 2,3). God needs listeners as well as pleaders.

What a subject is this matter of prayer! What books have been written on it through the centuries!

To the heart which has become habitually prayerful, guidance is no longer a mutable hypothesis, it is a glad certitude. That which above all else makes guidance real and constant is a reverent familiarity with the Guide.
