I Sit and Rock Alone

Just yesterday it seems my children played upon the floor
And I wiped countless fingerprints from window panes and door.
I kissed away a thousand tears and darned sock after sock
And tried to keep pace with the hands that raced around the clock.
And often at the end of day, too tired to sleep, in bed I lay,
I'd think how nice when, children grown, my time again should be my own.

So now I sit and rock alone, my hands at rest, the work all done;
No little tots upon the floor, no fingerprints upon the door.

No socks to mend, bruises to kiss -
Ah me! How could I know I'd miss
The very things I grudged to do
Dear God, if only there might be someone again who needed me!

Send Them to Bed with a Kiss

O mothers, so weary, discouraged,
Worn out with the cares of the day.
You often grow cross and impatient,
Complain of the noise and the play;
For the days bring so many vexations,
And many things go amiss;
But mothers, whatever may vex you,
Send the children to bed with a kiss!

The dear little feet wander often,
Perhaps from the pathway of right.
The dear little hands find new mischief
To try you from morning till night;
But think of the desolate mothers
Who'd give all the world for your bliss,
And, as thanks for your infinite blessings,
Send the children to bed with a kiss.

For someday their noise will not vex you,
The silence will hurt you far more;
You will long for their sweet, childish voices,
For a sweet, childish face at the door;
And to press a child's face to your bosom,
You'd give all the world for just this!
For the comfort 'twill bring you in sorrow,
Send the children to bed with a kiss.

Baby's Footprints Toward Church

Near a church in Kansas, there can be seen in a cement sidewalk the prints of two baby feet with the toes pointing toward the church. It was said that years ago, when the sidewalk was being laid, a mother secured permission to stand the baby boy on the wet cement. The tracks are seen plainly today. The mother had wanted her little boy to start right.
