Kid Cowboy

When our son David was 3 years old, he wanted to be a cowboy. He had a pair of cowboy boots that he wore everywhere. One Wednesday night he wore them to church. As he was getting ready to go home, his teacher said, " David, you have your cowboy boots on the wrong feet." David looked down at his feet, then up to his teacher, and very seriously replied, " These are my feet!"

The Vacant Sandbox

Vacant now, the sandbox stands.
No childish feet, no little hands.
Sift the still and silent sands.
I close my eyes and I can see
Small children in my memory,
Talking, laughing happily,
Building roads and bridges high,
Forts and castles to the sky.
But since, have many days gone by.
Those children, now to adults grown,
Have scattered far from childhood home
And they have children of their own.
Be patient, sandbox, for some day
When other children pass this way
You'll be a haven for their play.

- Clarice Lancaster

Ancient history records, that a certain city was besieged, and at length obliged to surrender. In the city there were two brothers, who had, in some way, obliged the conquering general; and in consequence of this, received permission to leave the city before it was set on fire, taking with them as much of their property as each could carry about his person. Accordingly the two generous youths appeared at the gates of the city, one of them carrying their father, and the other their mother.

Dear Barbara,
My teenage kids will not accept our rules, and they are giving me continual fits,
What can I do?

Fitful in Philadelphia

Dear Fitful,
The smartest advice on raising kids is to enjoy them while they are still on your side. If it was going to be easy to raise kids, it never would have started with something called Labor!

One mother of three notoriously unruly youngsters was asked whether she would have children if she had it to do all over again, and she replied, " Yes, but not the same ones!"
